KINGSLEY PRESENTS

The Wild & Wonderful World of Photography with Michele McCormick

Michele McCormick, our 5th Lecture Speaker, will discuss her extensive photography experience and journey.

WEDNESDAY, May 17:
Lecture 5 - Michele McCormick

Michele's interest in photography started four decades ago in college and lead her through a lifelong journey, including freelance writing and editorial photography for publications around the world. Michele's path took her to a career outside of the photography world, but life had other ideas in mind, as she returned to a second career in photography.

migratory bird photography need not be limited to seasons . . . and a new passion was born, with a side benefit of a resulting deep knowledge of the bird world.

While Michele continues her interest in a variety of subjects, she has found a special love of avian artistry, reflected in her latest galleries. She hopes your passions will take wings of their own form, as hers have.

A note for you from Michele:

Photography is an amazing journey - one which is all about sharing!

I am captivated by many photographic opportunities, but I find myself ever more enthralled with the birds of my region. It is my special pleasure to share these, and perhaps inspire you to look into your own backyard for the beauty that is there.

Mark this on your calendar now.

A Great Egret in flight is just one example of Michele McCormick's passion for bird photography.
